MONEY FOR THE COLLEGES

President Griswold of Yale,

reporting on his first year as head

of that institution of learning, expresses one dominant impression

— the desperate financial need of the nation's universities operating on private endowments. New sources of income must be found at once, he warns. But where?

Regular contributions from alumni have enabled scores of universities to remain solvent, despite the inroads of inflation. But,

as President Griswold points out,

the rising level of personal income

taxes makes giving more difficult,

especially on the part of those in the middle income brackets, the main source of annual gifts.

Legacies are uncertain and intermittent. What the private colleges and universities need without question is new capital, working capital, capital without strings or designated purposes, capital to be dispensed at administrative discretion.

Large philanthropic institutions and private businesses make generous contributions earmarked

for special projects of research.

These gifts do not, however, help

the universities to meet their general financial needs. Tuition cannot be increased beyond certain

limits without restricting educational benefits to too narrow a circle.

Meanwhile, with salaries of faculties not keeping pace with inflation, government and industries are outbidding universities

for graduates with professional training. Teaching, under such circumstances, becomes less and less appealing.

THE SOUL IS MISSING

La Prensa, one of the world's great newspapers, was closed down 10 months ago by Argentina's dictator-president, Juan Peron. The other day for the first time since that tragic event, people in Buenos Aires could once again read a newspaper with that famous name on its masthead.

But even though the name was identical and even though the new La Prensa is printed in the same format on the same presses, not even President Peron could have the colossal nerve to claim that the newspaper is the same.

What is missing in the new La Prensa is the old La Prensa's free and independent soul. The new La Prensa is a slave journal, tied to the apron strings of Juan and Eva Peron, echoing their slogans, daring to think only what they permit it to think and to say only what they allow it to say. It is the servant of these two and nothing more.

The old La Prensa served no master but the best ideals and interests of the Argentine people and it served them well. It spoke its own mind freely and without fear. It dared to speak the truth even when it knew its own life was at stake. It died rather than betray its soul and let the people of Argentina down.

That is why the old La Prensa is dead today and it is also why the new La Prensa can be no better than a bitter mockery of the great newspaper whose name and physical form it has usurped.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Congress has established an advisory commission to keep an eye on the State Department's propaganda operations, particularly the Voice of America and the International Press and Publications Division.

The commission has a number of able citizens as members, but all have remained discreetly silent in the face of serious charges concerning the ineptness, inefficiency and illegal operations of the program.

Edward Barrett, Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, runs the gab shop over in the State Department. He got belted by a former employee, Frank Stout, who wrote a series of newspaper articles for the Scranton (Pennsylvania) Tribune. Barrett hasn't been the same since, although he can still scribble telegrams to Stout, to his boss, and to me.

Stout and his editor, Robert J. Arthur, are pressing for a Congressional inquiry into Barrett's operations, but they might settle for a thoroughgoing investigation by the Advisory Commission. In fact, if Barrett weren't scared he'd submit Stout's charges himself, instead of hiding behind what he calls his own "internal investigation" of the charges.

The Commission members are Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, chairman; Philip D. Reed, chairman of the Board of the General Electric Company; Mark A. May, chairman of the Institute of Human Relations, Yale University; Justin Miller, chairman of the board, National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters; Ben Hibbs, editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

The Advisory Commission is supposed to report to Congress on the operations of Barrett and his departments. They have not done so at this writing, although when they were appointed it was made clear that the assignment was more than just an honorary title. In fact, the charges leveled by Stout were called to the Commission's attention, but apparently got no further than the secretariat.

Commission members ought to know by now what Stout charged. If not, I'll review a few of the accusations just so the members will know they have their work cut out for them if and when they decide to take action.

Stout said that Barrett used writers, who were hired to gather propaganda, to spy on Congress and that the Voice of America is wasteful; that it misfires its best propaganda shots; that it keeps inept and ignorant aides on the payroll, and that, in general, it operates in a sea of confusion.

Barrett denied the charges before he had read them, which is a normal State Department procedure. He said there was no basis, whatsoever, for Stout's allegations, and that Stout was derelict in not telling him about the secretariat.

Bristol Twp. Elementary School

The music program in the elementary schools under the leadership of A. Erna McEvitt is thoroughly enjoyed by all of the students.

American Folk Dances are being taught through grades 1 to 6. In addition, the 6th grades are learning Latin-American music and are using the rhythmic instruments of the Latin-American countries. The music program is closely coordinated with the social studies program in each room. Some classes have developed unusual abilities in Choral Reading activities. These are both rhythmic and musical.

Some of the recent arrivals in our schools have come from foreign countries. They have been eager to sing their native songs, use their native language and assist the classes in understanding the day-to-day life of children in other countries. Just recently Nina Zacharovska and Vera Litvinenko, from Laurel Bend sixth grade, have sung Ukrainian Folk Lullabies for their classmates. These students have added a wealth of profitable information to our music and social studies programs.

The elementary instrumental program is meeting with considerable enthusiasm on the part of the student body. Miss Sarah C. Cherry is the instructor. A Spring get-together is planned for the instrumental group. The children are excited over the possibility of becoming a member of the High School Band at a later date.

The following children are active in this program:

Croydon: Jean Foster, Carol Ann Carr, George Logue, Dennis Greenfield, Nicholas Flacco, Joseph Makrak, Wayne Warner, and William McNutt.

Laurel Bend: Robert Rich, John Joseph, Bess Vattimo, James Vogt, Arlene Chew, Richard Vanard, Howell Zapp, Barry Turk, and Bernard Hellejeneck.

O God, Who hast made of one blood all the nations of the Earth: Help us, we beseech Thee, to feel our kinship with all men; to preserve the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace; to be sympathetic and compassionate in the presence of suffering; and ever to be mindful of, and considerate toward, those less fortunate than ourselves. the new instructors will graduate from West Chester State Teachers College in January, 1952, and will receive $2600 per year.

The report of Dr. Heckman was received. Dr. Heckman told of going to Washington, D. C., last week with Carl Corts, Jr., a member of the board, and Harold Haag, architect. They consulted with members of the United States Office of Education in regard to receiving materials for the construction of the proposed new junior-senior high school. The Office of Education requested more information which has been gathered by Dr. Heckman and will be presented in Washington today by Mr. Haag. It is believed that within a week, the board will know whether or not it will receive an allocation of steel during the second quarter of 1952.

Dr. Heckman also reported that three Neshaminy school students, Patricia Roach, Connie Neilson, and Thomas Potts had won third prize in an inter-high school contest on painting "Halloween designs at Jenkintown.

It was announced that the Neshaminy schools were given one week to the raising of money for the several organizations which solicit funds through the schools.

The campaign was designated as the "Blue Feather" campaign and students were given the understanding that other money-raising campaigns would not be conducted during the remainder of the year.

Dr. Heckman told of the crowded conditions that exist in the classrooms in the elementary schools and high school, causing an emotional strain on the teachers who handle four or five classes daily and then have a study class of about 50 in addition to doing extra-curriculum duties. Dr. Heckman was given permission to engage another teacher to help relieve the situation.

The board voted to continue basketball during the 1951-52 season. The Lions Club will fete the football team, cheer leaders, and band at a banquet on December 13.

It was decided to consult engineers relative to the supplying of water to the proposed high school. The board has the choice of digging its own wells or accepting an offer by the Philadelphia Suburban Water Company which will sell it the water provided the board pays the cost of installing the pipe line.

Chairman Kenneth M. Comly read a survey made by the Philadelphia Electric Company on the lighting system of the Pennell school. It was decided to accept the recommendation and advertise for bids.

The bid to install an oil burner system in the Pennell school was awarded to Frank Coffey, Newtown, for the sum of $1550. The contract for laying a wooden floor in the Pennell school was given to Frank Pizzullo, Bristol. The low bid was $1550.

Frank Mitchell read the treasurer's report, stating the balance was $46,568.57.

Directors present were: Langhorne Borough, Dr. J. Fred Scull, Paul B. Bennett, Carl A. F. Corts, Jr., Frank R. Mitchell; Langhorne Manor, T. E. Coe, Jr., Mrs. Howard A. Gutgesell, Mrs. H. S. In his talk to the group Mr. Crosswaite reviewed what was accomplished in the way of legislation favorable to boroughs during the present session of the legislature. He said that the main object of the State Association is to preserve home rule for the boroughs and "we believe that it is best for the people to solve their problems, even if it is not done so well; it will make better citizens."

The invocation was asked by William Butler, burgess of Doylestown; after which Mr. Byers told those assembled that he was exceedingly glad to see 116 men present and the amount of interest shown in the meeting. He asked that secretaries of all boroughs inform the towships under the following plan: $3,000,000 divided by the total miles of public roads and streets which are maintained by the district multiplied by the number of such miles in the particular district.

The entire act was read by Bassett and questions answered and then by way of illustration the amounts some of the Bucks County districts will receive were given as follows:

Bristol, $9,119.80; Chalfont, $1,044.66; Hulmeville, $365.15; Ivyland, $690.76; Langhorne, $1,276.13; Langhorne Manor, $1,206.74; Morrisville, $6,520.95; New Britain, $751.66; New Hope, $1,080.05; Newtown, $2,059.47; Pennell, $1,191.75; Perkasie, $4,714; Quakertown, $4,684.66; Tullytown, $796.28; Yardley, $1,990.50.

Karl C. King, congressman-elect of Bucks-Lehigh District, spoke briefly saying that when he assumed his duties at Washington that he thought that he would have a "big job to do and I hope that I can perform the duties creditably."

Burgess Harry Shields, Newtown, extended a welcome to the visitors.

Those from Bristol attending the meeting were: Francis J. Byers, John S. Lynn, John H. Wicksler, Nicholas Pascale, Thomas Gosline, William Wallace, Joseph Ferry, Joseph DeLissio, Harold F. Hunter, and Livingstone Joyce.

DRAPERY MATCH

URBANA, Ill.—(INS)—When you buy patterned material to make draperies, be sure to examine the pattern closely to determine how much extra fabric you'll need for matching. Home furnishings specialist Dorothy J. Iwig, University of Illinois College of Agriculture, says the pattern in the draperies should match across the window. And, if the draperies are the draw type, they should form a complete pattern when drawn.
